

Hello to my lovely Class 6D!

Well, here we are again ... in lockdown. Before I go on to explain the work I have set you for today, I need to tell you that I will miss you all very much in the next few weeks. Although, I will see some of you in school, it won't quite be the same as having us all together in the classroom. I'm sure you will do some fabulous work and I am looking forward to seeing it all. Don't forget that you can message me here to ask me about any of the work I have set, tell me about the work you are doing, or just to say hello

The work I am setting now is just for Tuesday and then tomorrow, I will send you out some work for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and explain our topics in more detail.

For morning work (to get you started) I have attached a sheet called 'The Word Generator'

For Maths I have set you times table practice. Remember, if you are confident with your times tables, the challenge is to do them in as short a time as possible. I have also added an activity where you need to convert time and measurement units.

For Reading, I have set you the first chapter of a book called 'The Litter Wish' and the quiz which goes with it. If you need to, please try and read the chapter with an adult and answer the questions together.

For English, there is an activity relating to the chapter you have just read.

There is also an Art activity relating to this too, so get creative!

Our Science topic is called "Listen Up!" and is all about sound. I have attached the lesson planning for your grown ups to look at and also the powerpoint and worksheet. Today's activity is all about listening for sounds in different environments. The lesson plan is just for guidance really, so please just select the parts you are able to do in your own environment.

I will give you more details on our main topic, our English unit and more detail about our Maths learning tomorrow. The sheets attached can be printed off, or you can complete the work on separate paper if you wish.

Please do ask me any questions and I will send you another email later on tomorrow with work for the rest of the week.

From Miss Davies
